

THE ARTIST SERIES

OPPORTUNITY

LICENSED MERCHANDISE FOR PFL AND MVP

$44.4BN

Licensed sports merchandise in 2025. The fastest growing property category in licensing, up 8.5 per cent on the year

$16.3BN

Apparel inside that number. At 38.2 per cent of licensed sports sales it is the largest slice by some distance

86%

Of brand owners name fashion their biggest licensing opportunity for 2026 and 2027

$46.4BN

Licensed toys and collectibles in 2025, with adult collectors driving most of the growth

01 THE MODEL

ONE COMMISSION, EVERY CATEGORY

The UFC hands a marquee card to an artist and runs the result across the whole shop. An event tee on the night. A framed print at $199.99. Numbered trading cards in runs of a few hundred. Canvas editions pressed onto used Octagon canvas, ten of each. Designer art toys built with Stancé and stylised by Tracy Tubera.

The same drawing runs from an event tee to a $199.99 framed print, and carries into categories apparel cannot reach on its own.

02 THE PROOF

ARTWORK MOVES MERCHANDISE

UFC 300 sold more merchandise than any arena event in the company's history. The card carried its own Artist Series poster, and the shop carried the tee alongside it.

When MLB gave Takashi Murakami the Tokyo Series, the collection sold out on the Fanatics app inside the hour, most of it gone in fifteen minutes, after 100,000 fans downloaded the app to get at it. The event took $40 million in gear and cards, a Fanatics record. Artwork is what turns a fan watching into a fan buying.

03 THE STUDIO

WHAT WE BUILD

We make the artwork and the rules that hold it together. For Fuji we delivered the brand guide and the style guide, with fighter artwork researched properly, like the Rickson Gracie graphic drawn from his own fight material.

For Scramble and Phalanx we run the seasonal trend work and turn it into collections. Everything is built in vector so it re-colours cleanly, drops into a licensee pack, and scales from a fight kit to a card back without being redrawn.

WHERE ONE ARTWORK TRAVELS

01

SOFT LINES

Event tees, fleece, headwear and fan apparel. The volume driver, and 38.2 per cent of every licensed sports sale.

02

HARD LINES

Framed prints, canvas editions, drinkware and wall art. Higher ticket, shorter runs, and the margin sits in the artwork.

03

COLLECTIBLES

Numbered trading cards and designer figures. UFC's cards run through Fanatics and Topps on an exclusive licence.

04

GAMES AND DIGITAL

In-game kit, console art and digital collectibles. The artwork travels here at almost no unit cost.

PROPOSED ROUTE

STAGE 01

STYLE GUIDE

One artwork system for the merged business. Fight kit, fan apparel and the licensee packs CAA already distributes.

STAGE 02

ARTIST SERIES PILOT

One marquee card, one commissioned fighter artwork, released across tee, print, card and collectible. A clean read on sell-through by category.

STAGE 03

SEASONAL COLLECTION

Two drops a year, trend led, scaled across licensees and territories and priced to sit next to the streetwear fans already buy.

Every fight night already makes a poster. We turn it into a season.